You listen to me, and you listen good. This ends now and here is how it's going to work: I have deleted my Twitter account because, frankly, I have better things to do than deal with you and your followers. I am going to make you a one-time offer and you get to choose.

1. I am willing to walk away. Right here. Right now. You remove the libelous blog posts about me and make whatever excuse you want. I really don't care what it is. You will never see or hear from me ever again. We both go about our lives.
2. You can do what I think you are more than likely to do anyway and simply add this e-mail to your blog post. If you do that, I want to make it very clear what is going to happen. I have a picture of you. I am going to put it on my mirror at home, near my desk, and in my truck. My pure and absolute hatred for you will be unprecedented. My hatred for you will serve as a motivation for me to build an entirely new business and to earn enough money so that, one day, I will be able to make your life such an absolute living hell that I'll be able to hurt you without so much as laying a hand on you: I will make you so miserable and treat you with such extreme and completely unprecedented cruelty that you'll either kill yourself or move yourself and your family to the most remote part of the world you can afford to escape my wrath. The bottom line is that I will not forget you and that there will be retribution. It may take me a year. It may take me 20 years. I may get you on my first try. I may get you on my seventeenth try. But I will never stop.

You will take this offer today or the only thing that you will have to know is that, sooner or later, I will come for you.

Kyle is one of my best friends. What I am saying is that what his bitch of a soon-to-be-ex-wife wrote is completely false. She has, by her own admission in the article, been committed to a mental institution and held for a period of time. Yet ATL chooses to link to this hatchet job? Extremely poor decision. I'll put it this way: Everyone knows that Kyle and I were more than willing to sue everyone on the planet who defamed us over the Pink Meth case. I myself sued no less than three people over the course of six months who thought posting similar stuff about me online would be funny. Do you really think that Kyle would bat an eyelash as suing anyone who republishes that piece? And do you really think I wouldn't be right there next to him helping with the entire process? For people that actually that her seriously, its going to cost them a lot of money.

Let me guess: 3 lawsuits filed, zero wins for you. Am I right? Do you start all your complaints with "I'M A LAWYER! THIS IS MY TRUCK!" You really should.

Nope. I won them all. The little pricks were too scared to show up for Court. Believe me, I have ZERO ethics when it comes to business and will not hesitate to destroy anyone daring to interfere with my interests.

talibkweli After Jason L Van Dyke, Texas lawyer who calls us nigger and autistic faggot while threatening to murder ppl and their children, had his business contact info which was found on the Texas Bar website posted by me, he posted this pic of his AR15. The same exact weapon used to murder 26 people in his home state of Texas the day after he threatened to murder people with it. So decent people should ask @twitter why we cannot share the business contact info of business owners who threaten murder while using racial slurs. They'd rather see this kind of behavior normalized. I guess violent racists are their bottom line.

No longer welcome where I've trained for years. This is the final straw. Langton, White, Kweli, HuffPo - they are all getting sued first thing Monday morning. This ends now. They can disbar me if they want, I don't give a damn. If they sanction me, my property is defended with a 50 BMG.
